WELCOME TO THE DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE AT MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY!

Political Science is a social science concerned with the description and analysis of political, and especially governmental, institutions and processes. Increasingly, the emphasis is being placed on how governments deal with specific policy problems, such as war and peace, poverty, crime, education, energy, pollution, or inter-group relations, and on the factors that affect these problems. The study of political science provides one with the concepts, theories and methods necessary to analyze these policy problems scientifically. Because of the complexities of modern legislation and current political changes, political science is considered an essential component of a broad education for today's world.

The Department of Political Science at MSU offers three majors: General Political Science, Political Science Prelaw, and Public Administration and Public Policy. Each of these majors is designed to offer a well-rounded liberal education for our students. Our academic program was created with the flexibility for students to pursue academic specializations and/or additional majors, with little or no extra time required to complete their college degree.

GENERAL POLITICAL SCIENCE

Students wanting to enter politics, journalism, business or teaching, and students wanting to pursue graduate studies in political science or who want to prepare for employment in international agencies concerned with foreign affairs normally choose the General Political Science program. The flexibility of this program makes it a logical choice for those who wish to sample a wide variety of courses within the political science discipline.

POLITICAL SCIENCE PRELAW

This program is highly recommended for political science students who want to enter law school or to prepare for paralegal careers. It is designed to introduce students to the study of law and judicial process and also provides a general orientation for law school. This program is also ideal for those seeking careers in intelligence or law enforcement.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION AND PUBLIC POLICY

For students interested in administrative positions with local, state or federal governments or with public agencies, universities or volunteer organizations, such as labor unions, farm organizations, chambers of commerce and civil rights groups, this program provides an excellent background.

www.polisci.msu.edu - We highly recommend that you bookmark this page and visit often. Hopefully, answers to many of your questions can be found here!

When to See an Advisor

Your advisor is here to help answer questions – although the primary focus is on departmental academics, your advisor can field almost any question you have about MSU. Some common reasons students make appointments are:

- Enrollment – including drops, adds, and scheduling concerns
- Additional Majors/Second Degrees or Major Changes
- Career and Internship questions
- Graduate School/Law School Information
- Graduation Requirements

Appointments

All appointments are scheduled through MSU's online advising appointment system.

Please log-in at www.polisci.msu.edu/under/advising.htm to schedule an appointment.

Appointment times are generally posted 1-2 weeks in advance, so if there aren't any compatible appointment times, please check back in a few days.

Expectations

It is your responsibility to become familiar with your graduation requirements; your advisor is here to provide information and insight, to answer questions and give guidance – but your degree is ultimately your responsibility. Please make use of the many resources available to you to ensure that you get the most out of your time at MSU!

PLS HONORS PROGRAM

The Department of Political Science offers an enriched program to members of the Honors College who are majoring in Political Science.

Honors College students must meet the following additional requirements:

1. At least two honors courses in Political Science (not including the Honors Seminar in Research Design and the Senior Honors Thesis). Honors courses include honors sections, honors options, and graduate seminars.
2. Honors Seminar in Research Design (PLS 481H). (Usually in Fall semester of junior or senior year.)
3. Senior Honors Thesis (PLS 491H).
 - a. The Senior Honors Thesis satisfies the Tier II Writing requirement, with the approval of the Department.
 - b. The Senior Honors Thesis must be supervised by a faculty member in the Department of Political Science.

Honors College students are encouraged to take at least one graduate course in Political Science. Approval of the faculty instructor in the course is required.

Honors College students will be permitted to waive any of these additional requirements, including the senior honors thesis requirement, or to complete approved substitutes, if the waiver or substitution contributes to an enhancement of the student's undergraduate program. Alternative capstone experiences may be substituted for the Senior Honors Thesis. Approval of the Department's Honors Adviser is required for such waivers and substitutions.

All Political Science Honors College majors are required to complete the Senior Honors Thesis (or a comparable capstone) in order to graduate as a member in good standing of the Honors College.

The Department offers honors sections of PLS 100, 140, 160, 200, and 201 on a regular basis. Honors sections of 300-level courses are also offered occasionally. The Department also offers honors option opportunities in many courses; honors options must be arranged by agreement with the faculty instructor in the course early in the semester. If a student seeks to complete an honors option in a course taught by a graduate student instructor, approval of the Department's honors adviser is required, by both university and department policy. In order to achieve an honors option in any Political Science course, a grade of at least 3.0 in the course is required. Graduate courses also count as honors courses; honors students are encourage to consider graduate course opportunities.

(See reverse for additional information)

PLS HONORS PROGRAM

The Honors Thesis

The honors program in the Department of Political Science provides opportunities for honors students to engage in original research under the close supervision of a faculty member in the Department. By writing an Honors Thesis, students have the chance to put their accumulated study of political science to use in a major, year-long project of independent research and scholarship. Typically, the honors thesis will be 25-50 pages. Additional research opportunities may be available, by arrangement with a faculty member in the Department, and may earn credit through PLS 490H, Honors Internship.

The Honors Seminar in Research Design (PLS 481H, usually taken in Fall of junior or senior year) is designed to assist students in the preparation of a research design for the honors thesis. The honors thesis is a substantial work of independent research or scholarship, to be supervised by a faculty member in the Department and evaluated by an Honors Thesis Committee of three readers selected by the student in consultation with the Department. The Chair of the Honors Thesis Committee must (except in unusual circumstances and with the approval of the Department) be a faculty member in the Department. (If a faculty member from outside the Department is selected, a faculty supervisor from the Department will be designated as faculty of record for PLS 491H.) Graduate students in the Department of Political Science may serve on an Honors Thesis Committee with the approval of the Department. Faculty and academic staff at MSU from outside the Department may serve on an Honors Thesis Committee with the approval of the Department.

After completion of the Honors Thesis, the Department will arrange for an oral presentation of the thesis. The defense will be open to Department faculty and students. The Committee will confer honors as follows:

HONORS: completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would earn at least a 3.0 on a final paper in one of the Department's Tier II Writing courses.

HIGH HONORS: completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would earn a 4.0 on a final paper in one of the Department's Tier II Writing courses.

HIGHEST HONORS: completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would, with modest revisions, be of a quality sufficient for presentation at a professional conference, or that would meet a comparable standard appropriate to the project.

Students may enroll for 3-6 credits of PLS 491H, Senior Honors Thesis.

Honors students are encouraged to present honors thesis work at the University Undergraduate Research and Arts Forum (usually in April).

PLS TEACHING MINOR

Students who are majoring in Education may earn a teaching minor in Political Science. Students should complete the following requirements to achieve the teaching minor and prepare for the state's competency exam:

Three of the following: PLS 100, 140, 160, 170

The following course: PLS 200

Three of the following: PLS 201, 301, 320, 321, 324, 325, 331 (American Politics)
PLS 351, 354, 356 (Comparative Politics)
PLS 362, 363, 364 (International Relations)
PLS 371, 372, 377 (Political Theory)

DEGREE ENHANCEMENTS

MSU offers a number of degree enhancements that may be used to complement or extend academic interest. Students should contact the department or office that sponsors the degree enhancement to inquire about specific requirements or formally add it to their primary degree.

Second Degree

Second degrees require ~150 total credits. With this option, students earn a second diploma.

Primary Major

The PLS primary majors require 33-48 degree-specific courses. Student must graduate with ~120 total credits.

Additional Major

Generally, additional majors require 30-45 additional credits. Students must complete a minimum of ~120 total credits. This major is transcriptable and does not result in a second diploma.

Minor

Minors were first introduced to MSU in the late summer months of 2006. Slowly, departments have begun to offer minor programs. Currently, the only minor the PLS Department offers is the Teaching Minor. Most minors require at least 20 credits.

Specialization

Most specializations comprise sets of courses that may be linked thematically. While most specializations are available to all undergraduates, others may be limited to students in designated majors or programs. Most specializations range from 14 - 28 credits. For more information please visit:

AWARDS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

The Department of Political Science receives information each semester about awards and scholarships that are available either to College of Social Science students exclusively or to all Michigan State students. As this information becomes available, the advisors will circulate the information to all political science majors. Many of these awards have specific criteria that students must meet in order to be eligible and materials must be submitted by the designated deadline. For additional information, students should contact the respective department or college that coordinates the scholarship.

Two scholarships that are coordinated by the Department of Political Science include:

Burton L. and Rosalie P. Gerber Scholarship

Established to provide assistance to a student who has shown through academic excellence and diverse activities that he or she has a commitment to public service and a goal of joining one of the foreign affairs agencies in the United States. Criteria include: 3.5GPA, PLS or IDS major with an emphasis in International Studies with at least 3 upper-division PLS courses, participation in extra-curricular activities while at MSU, and undergraduate senior (at the time the award is dispersed- usually in the Fall term). Preference to students funding a major share of own college expenses. Deadline: Mid-February. In late fall, look for email announcements inviting you to apply from the PLS Department.

Richard B. Gerisch Scholarship

Established to provide assistance to students who evidence determination and dedication to public administration. This scholarship also honors students who show personal responsibility and efficiency in their public service ethics. Criteria include: Public Administration and Public Policy majors or IDS major of Public Policy Studies; must be juniors in Spring Semester of award year who will be seniors in college the following year and completed at least one semester of course work at MSU; must be preparing for careers in public policy or public administration in government, non-profit sector public interest association, or private sector organizations that deal with the interrelationship between private enterprise and public policy; must show evidence of intellectual maturity and a well-rounded undergraduate education (academic and career related development). Deadline: Late January. Please consult SSC link for application (<http://socialscience.msu.edu/current/scholarships.html>).

Other popular scholarships that are pursued by PLS majors include:

College of Social Science Distinguished Scholarships

Ernest G. & Phyllis C. Green Black Alumni Scholarship

Charles Hayden Kelly Scholarship

Dr. Charles A. & Marjorie A. Gliozzo Endowed Scholarship for Domestic/International Internships

STUDY ABROAD / STUDY AWAY

Michigan State University encourages students to take advantage of the opportunities available for overseas study. As technology and politics contribute to a global society, international experience facilitates an understanding of other peoples and societies and the ability to function as an informed citizen in the 21st century. Many of the programs offered by MSU fulfill graduation requirements. The Department of Political Science promotes three programs of study in particular: Washington, D.C., United Kingdom, and Australia. Courses are taught by political science faculty from MSU and by guest lecturers. Ask an advisor to help you determine how overseas study will work in your degree program.

Washington, D.C.

Program offered Fall and Spring terms. Apply in early spring. This program provides an exceptional opportunity for qualified students to live and work in our nation's capital while maintaining a full program of academic study. The twelve-week program offers a full range of courses, including a work assignment in one of Washington's wide range of government agencies, not-for-profit organizations, or corporations. Student participants have the opportunity to interact with Washington professionals and to enjoy the city's vast cultural and educational resources while earning 12 academic credits. www.cis-ss.msu.edu/dcstudy

United Kingdom

Program offered Summer term only. Apply in early spring. Earn a minimum of 7 credits to a maximum of 12 credits. During this five-week program, earn Social Science (ISS) and/or Political Science credit while studying British politics, society, and culture in two of the great cities of the United Kingdom. London is one of the world's great political centers, the birthplace of representative democracy and the busy heart of a major European parliamentary system. It is also a lively center of Western culture and entertainment. Students will have access to some of the world's greatest museums and historic sites, as well as to the theatre and rock concerts and much more. Edinburgh is the historic capital of Scotland. It is a beautiful city (sometimes called the "Athens of the North"), located in a splendid natural setting, and it is the political and cultural heart of Scotland. <http://studyabroad.msu.edu/programs/ukpolisci.html>

Australia

Program offered Spring term only. Apply early! This six-week interdisciplinary program is open to all majors and offers a unique opportunity to study firsthand the people, government, justice system and public policies of Australia. You'll have ample time to travel independently after the program in Australia, New Zealand, the Pacific Islands or Asia. As a means of broadly exploring specific points of contrast, this study abroad program gives an overview of the contemporary government, political, and justice systems of Australia. It also examines traditional and emerging public policy in several areas of importance to contemporary Australia (i.e. the environment, immigration, aboriginal affairs, equal opportunity, multiculturalism, social welfare, health, and international relations). Where appropriate, comparisons are drawn to the United States. <http://studyabroad.msu.edu/programs/austpeople.html>.

If you are interested in another area of the world or topics of particular interest, please explore the large variety of programs available @ <http://studyabroad.msu.edu>.

INTERNSHIPS: PLS 494

While field experience is required only for Public Administration and Public Policy majors, Prelaw and General Political Science majors should consider gaining practical experience during their undergraduate studies. Students can learn valuable job search and career exploration techniques, develop job-related skills, and frequently make contacts that will be useful in their careers after graduation.

If you would like to earn academic credit for your field experience, the Political Science Department offers a course for which you can apply. The program has a limited number of spaces per semester so students should make plans and prepare their applications prior to the semester in which they would like to participate. PLS 494 may be used as one substitution for one 300-level PLS course. Please contact your advisor to secure a program application.

Program requirements

Interns must:

- ✓ Be a PLS undergraduate student at Michigan State University
- ✓ Have a minimum GPA of 2.50 at the time of application
- ✓ Have completed 60 credits by the start of their internship
- ✓ Agree to work 3 hours per week for each credit hour they are seeking
- ✓ Attend the mandatory course orientation and the subsequent roundtable course sessions
- ✓ Complete the Agreement and Requirement & Responsibilities Forms
- ✓ Complete all reading and writing assignments for the course.
- ✓ Complete the midterm examination.
- ✓ Adhere to all posted dates and deadlines

Program Details

Students are responsible for securing their placement. Generally, this placement can be in a variety of areas within the following guidelines:

- ✓ Internships must be related to government, politics, or public service
- ✓ Students may not serve as intern in an office where they have previously worked
- ✓ Internship credit will not be given for page positions
- ✓ Only one MSU Political Science student per semester may serve in any office
- ✓ Students can only receive a total of 6 credits for a PLS internship; minimum number of credits a student can receive is 3 credits
- ✓ Students may not serve in internships on campus
- ✓ Full or part time jobs will not be eligible for internship credit
- ✓ All internships must be approved by the coordinator

INDEPENDENT STUDY: PLS 495

The purpose of an independent study is to pursue a subject that is not covered in a scheduled class. This may be further research on a topic raised in class or something that is not available in the University catalog. A student must have a topic of interest or a research plan and then approach a faculty member in the appropriate field. In general, faculty members will not agree to supervise independent study unless the student has done course work with them previously and has sufficient background to undertake the project. Remember, students who enroll in PLS independent studies receive a numerical grade, not a pass/no pass grade.

Once a project has been approved, the student must file an independent study application with the department.

NOTE: Only 3 credits of PLS 494 (internship) or 495 (independent study) may count toward the Political Science requirement. There is an overall limit of 20 combined credits allowed in internship/fieldwork and independent study.

INVESTIGATE YOUR CAREER OPTIONS

How do I know which career is right for me?

The best way to learn about a career is to talk to individuals who have held similar positions. Find professionals in your area who are willing to share their experiences. If you are unsure of where to begin, the Internship Coordinator for your major may be able to give you names and/or contact information of local professionals. You can also visit the College of Social Science Career Services website (http://socialscience.msu.edu/career_services/) identify career options, design personal career plans, develop job/internship search strategies, plan for graduate school and much more.

Job shadowing is a fantastic way to understand everyday tasks and get a sense of the day-to-day work of different professions. Spend a couple of hours, or even a few days, with a lawyer, a campaign manager, or a government official to better understand what their job really entails.

Another way to gain insight is to conduct an informational interview. Meet with a professional who is currently working in the field that interests you and ask them about their work. Why did they choose their position? What do they like/dislike about their career? Do they have recommendations for a student or new professional who wants to get into the field?

There are also a number of online resources that provide information on various careers. This is an opportunity to put your newly learned research skills to the test. You can start your search by visiting these websites:

www.myspartancareer.com (MSU's career resource for students)

http://www.educationindex.com/poli_sci/ (Government and Political Science Resources)

www.ourpublicservice.org (Government Jobs)

www.usajobs.opm.gov (Government Jobs)

www.studentjobs.gov (Government Jobs for Students)

www.mnaonline.org (Michigan Nonprofit Association)

Everyone wants me to have experience. How do I get it?

Complete some field experience through an internship class. Not all programs of study require internships to graduate, but this can be an invaluable opportunity to network, gain experience, and explore different career paths. Internship credits can also be used to meet other requirements within your major (i.e. one 300-level PLS requirement will be waived upon completion of a PLS 494 Political Science Internship).

In the past, what careers have political science graduates selected?

Recent MSU Political Science graduates are enrolled in a variety of graduate programs, including law, public administration, political science, business administration, labor and industrial relations, history, and psychology. Others are employed by businesses, industry, and several branches of government.

What are some of the traditional career suggestions for political science graduates?

Lawyer, paralegal, Campaign worker, journalist, events planner, researcher, editor, executive search consultant, political correspondent, human resources specialist, foreign service worker, policy analyst, public opinion analyst, education, consulting, public relations advisor, urban policy planner, labor relations specialist, congressional researcher, historical archivist, lobbyist, parole/probation officer, social worker, consumer advocate, etc.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

When should I meet with an adviser?

You should meet with an adviser at least once a year to plan your schedule for the following academic year. Enrollment usually begins in early April, so it is recommended that you schedule an appointment early in Spring Semester. It is often a good idea to meet with an adviser to discuss dropping or adding classes, study abroad programs, graduate school or law school, internships and career options. You are required to meet with your adviser in the semester prior to graduation to ensure that you have met all the necessary requirements.

How do I make an appointment? Log onto the online advising appointment system.

(<https://ntweb11.ais.msu.edu/AAS/AppLogin.Asp?Unit=PoliticalScience>) You'll need your MSUNetID and password to log in. Be sure to write down the time and date for which you've scheduled your appointment. If you know in advance you will be unable to make it to an appointment you've scheduled, please log back into the system and cancel it, or call 353-7225 to cancel. This allows us to give all of our students the best possible service.

How do I drop a course?

Anytime prior to the start of classes, through the middle of the semester you can drop your own classes on the Student Enrollment System (<http://webenroll.msu.edu/>). After the middle of the semester you need to pick up a late drop form in 201 Berkey Hall, complete it, and schedule an appointment with the Director or Assistant Director of Student Affairs – call 355-6676.

How do I get an override?

Sometimes, courses you want to add to your schedule are full or restricted for other reasons. In this case, you might try to obtain an override. Overrides are granted at the discretion of the instructor or department offering the specific course. For Political Science classes, you must contact the instructor directly and ask if they are willing to grant the override. Once you have instructor approval, you need to fill out an override request form or forward an email from the instructor granting you permission to join the class to one of the PLS advisors. For other subjects, you may want to contact the department directly (www.msu.edu/academics/areas.html) to inquire about their override policy.

What is a late add and how do I get one?

The term “late add” applies to adding any course after 5pm on the last day of the “Open Add” period. For Political Science courses, you need a form filled out by the instructor giving you permission to add the class. You take this form to the Department Office that teaches the course and they will add you to the class. For other subjects, you may want to contact the department directly to inquire about their late add policy.

What are the prerequisites for a class?

Check out the Schedule of Courses (www.schedule.msu.edu) or the Description of Courses (<http://www.reg.msu.edu/Courses/Search.asp>) for information on classes, including prerequisites, restrictions, descriptions, and semester offerings.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

How do I apply to the College of Social Science?

You don't need to apply to the College of Social Science. Once you have declared a major within the college, you will be automatically considered for acceptance upon reaching junior status (56 credits). Everyone currently in good academic standing is normally admitted to the College of Social Science.

How can I tell who is teaching a specific course?

Use the Schedule of Courses (www.schedule.msu.edu) to find the professor for a class. If no professor is shown, you can contact the department to see if more information is available. The department location and phone number is indicated in the top right corner.

Can I get a minor?

Few departments offer minors. You will have to ask your advisor or call the department in which you are interested. Currently, you can earn a teaching minor in Political Science only if you are a student within the College of Education; however, MSU does offer a number of ways to enhance your academic experience. You can add an academic specialization (<http://www.reg.msu.edu/UCC/specializations.asp>) to your major. You can also complete an additional major (in most cases, you will still only need 120/123 credits to graduate) or a second degree (150/153 credits to graduate in most cases). It is a good idea to visit an academic adviser in the major you are considering to determine what courses you would need to complete a specialization, additional major, or second degree.

How do I change my major?

If you are a freshman or sophomore (0-55 credits), you need to go to a Undergraduate University Division (UUD) office (<http://www.msu.edu/dept/uud/main.html>) to change your major. Students are designated to UUD offices based on where they live. If you are a junior or senior (56 credits or more), you need to see your academic advisor to change your major.

Should I complete an internship?

Absolutely! Now, not all programs of study require internship experience to graduate, but this can be an invaluable opportunity to network, gain experience, and check out different career paths. Internship credits can also sometimes be used to meet other requirements within your major (like a 300-level PLS course, for example!).

How and when do I apply for graduation?

There is an online graduation application on the Registrar's website (www.reg.msu.edu). Fall Semester graduates need to apply to graduate by the end of the first week of Fall Semester, and Spring and Summer graduates need to apply to graduate by the end of the first week of Spring Semester.

Can I take classes at another school to meet my MSU requirements?

Yes! Check out the Transfer Credit Equivalency System (www.transfer.msu.edu) to see how courses from different schools transfer back to Michigan State. Be careful though— once you have earned 56 credits (at MSU or anywhere else) you can no longer transfer credit from a community college— it must come from an accredited, 4-year institution!

CAMPUS RESOURCES

MSU CAREER SERVICES NETWORK is an interconnected system of career services units comprised of college-based offices and all-campus centers. The Career Network helps students to identify career options, design their personal career plan, develop job/internship search strategies, and plan for graduate school.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT CENTER (355-9510) located in 113 Student Services Building provides services for all majors, specializing in self-assessment tools and the early stages of career exploration.

FIELD CAREER CONSULTANT FOR THE COLLEGE OF SOCIAL SCIENCE (432-3598) located in 224 Berkey Hall provides advanced job search planning assistance, customized programming, and industry/profession specific resources for social science majors. For more information about the Career Network's general services, upcoming workshops and events, or to schedule a career advising appointment visit the web at www.careernetwork.msu.edu

CENTER FOR SERVICE-LEARNING AND CIVIC ENGAGEMENT (353-4400) in 207 Student Services Building coordinates the matching of the needs of the community and the volunteer services of MSU students. A wide range of possible placements allows the student to use his/her skills in a productive "real world" experience. www.servicelearning.msu.edu

COUNSELING CENTER (355-8270) in 207 Student Services Building and branch offices offer professional counseling for personal problems, career counseling, complete testing services and a self-management laboratory and workshops in many areas. www.couns.msu.edu

LEARNING RESOURCES CENTER (355-2363) in 209 Bessey Hall provides materials for improving reading, writing, listening, study and test-taking skills, as well as workshops each semester. A listing of current workshops is available there or from an advisor. <http://lrc.msu.edu>

WRITING CENTER (432-3610) in 300 Bessey Hall offers one-on-one writing consultations. Walk-ins or appointments are accepted for assistance at any stage of a writing project. It also has a Grammar Hotline at 432-3610. <http://writing.msu.edu>

TESTING OFFICE (355-8385) in 207 Student Services has registration materials for the LSAT and GRE and also administers foreign language placement tests. www.testingoffice.msu.edu

OFFICE OF SUPPORTIVE SERVICES (353-5210) in 209 Bessey Hall coordinates special programs for minority and disadvantaged students. It provides tutoring for basic classes for CAAP students and others who meet their criteria along with other services. www.msu.edu/user/oss

RESOURCE CENTER FOR PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES (353-9642) in 120 Bessey Hall has specialists responding to mobility, visual, hearing, alternative learning concerns, and other handicapped populations, enabling their involvement in University activities. www.rcpd.msu.edu
