Welcome

Political Science is a social science concerned with the description and analysis of political, and especially governmental, institutions and processes. Increasingly, the emphasis is being placed on how governments deal with specific policy problems, such as war and peace, poverty, crime, education, energy, pollution, or inter-group relations, and on the factors that affect these problems. The study of political science provides one with the concepts, theories and methods necessary to analyze these policy problems scientifically. Because of the complexities of modern legislation and current political changes, political science is considered an essential component of a broad education for today's world.

The Department of Political Science at MSU offers four majors: General Political Science, Political Science Pre-law, Public Policy, and World Politics. Each of these majors is designed to offer a well-rounded liberal education for our students. Our academic program was created with the flexibility for students to pursue academic specializations and/or additional majors, with little or no extra time required to complete their college degree.

GENERAL POLITICAL SCIENCE
Students wanting to enter politics, journalism, business or teaching, and students wanting to pursue graduate studies in political science or who want to prepare for employment in international agencies concerned with foreign affairs normally choose the General Political Science program. The flexibility of this program makes it a logical choice for those who wish to sample a wide variety of courses within the political science discipline.

POLITICAL SCIENCE PRE-LAW
This program is highly recommended for political science students who want to enter law school or to prepare for paralegal careers. It is designed to introduce students to the study of law and judicial process and also provides a general orientation for law school. This program is also ideal for those seeking careers in intelligence or law enforcement.

PUBLIC POLICY
For students interested in administrative positions with local, state or federal governments or with public agencies, universities or volunteer organizations, such as labor unions, farm organizations, chambers of commerce and civil rights groups, this program provides an excellent background.

WORLD POLITICS
This program is designed to educate students about governments and political systems of many different nations and the interactions among them. It will prepare students for careers in international affairs in the public, private, and non-profit spheres. The program allows students to study the regions of the world that most interest them but also provides broad coverage of international relations and comparative politics.
Academic Advising

The department recommends you take advantage of all the services the university and college provide you to keep track of your degree requirements and to monitor your academic progress.

Department Website

www.polisci.msu.edu  (We highly recommend that you bookmark this page and visit often. Hopefully, answers to many of your questions can be found here).

When to See an Advisor

Your advisor is here to help answer questions – although the primary focus is on departmental academics, your advisor can field many questions you have about MSU.

Appointments

All appointments are scheduled through MSU’s (new) online advising appointment system. Please log-in at  https://www.egr.msu.edu/adcalendar/  to schedule an appointment. Appointment times are generally posted 1-2 weeks in advance, so if there aren’t any compatible appointment times, please check back in a few days.

Expectations

It is your responsibility to become familiar with your graduation requirements; your advisor is here to provide information and insight, to answer questions and give guidance – but your degree is ultimately your responsibility. Please make use of the many resources available to you to ensure that you get the most out of your time at MSU.

You should meet with an advisor at least once a year to plan your schedule for the following academic year. Enrollment usually begins in early April, so it is recommended that you schedule an appointment early in Spring semester (February). It is often a good idea to meet with an advisor to discuss dropping or adding classes, study abroad programs, graduate school or law school, internships and career options. You are required to meet with your advisor in the semester prior to graduation to ensure that you have met all the necessary requirements.

How do I make an appointment? Log onto the online advising appointment system. (https://www.egr.msu.edu/adcalendar/) You'll need your MSUNetID and password to log in. Be sure to write down the time and date for which you've scheduled your appointment. If you know in advance you will be unable to make it to an appointment you've scheduled, please log back into the system and cancel it. This allows us to give all of our students the best possible service.

How do I drop a course?

Anytime prior to the start of classes, through the middle of the semester you can drop your own classes on the Student Enrollment System (http://webenroll.msu.edu/). After the middle of the semester you need to pick up a late drop form in 201 Berkey Hall, complete it, and schedule an appointment with the Director or Assistant Director of Student Affairs – call 355-6676.
How do I get an override?
Sometimes, courses you want to add to your schedule are full or restricted for other reasons. In this case, you might try to obtain an override. Overrides are granted at the discretion of the instructor or department offering the specific course. For Political Science classes, you must contact the instructor directly and ask if they are willing to grant the override. Once you have instructor approval, students can forward the email from the instructor granting you permission to join the class to Sarah Krause (skrause@msu.edu), PLS Department secretary. For other subjects, you may want to contact the department directly (www.msu.edu/academics/areas.html) to inquire about their override policy.

What is a late add and how do I get one?
The term “late add” applies to adding any course after 5pm on the last day of the “Open Add” period. For Political Science courses, you need a form filled out by the instructor giving you permission to add the class. You take this form to the Department Office that teaches the course and they will add you to the class. For other subjects, you may want to contact the department directly to inquire about their late add policy.

What are the prerequisites for a class?
Check out the Schedule of Courses or the Description of Courses for information on classes, including prerequisites, restrictions, descriptions, and semester offerings.

How do I apply to the College of Social Science?
You don't need to apply to the College of Social Science. Once you have declared a major within the college, you will be automatically considered for acceptance upon reaching junior status (56 credits). Everyone currently in good academic standing is normally admitted to the College of Social Science.

How can I tell who is teaching a specific course?
Use the Schedule of Courses to find the professor for a class. If no professor is shown, you can contact the department to see if more information is available. The department location and phone number is indicated in the top right corner.

Can I get a minor?
Some departments offer minors. You will have to ask your advisor or call the department in which you are interested. Currently, you can earn a teaching minor in Political Science only if you are a student within the College of Education; however, MSU does offer a number of ways to enhance your academic experience. You can add an academic specialization or Academic Minor (http://www.reg.msu.edu/academicprograms/Programs.asp?PType=MNUN) to your major. You can also complete an additional major (in most cases, you will still only need 120/123 credits to graduate) or a second degree (150/153 credits to graduate in most cases). It is a good idea to visit an academic adviser in the major you are considering to determine what courses you would need to complete a specialization, additional major, or second degree.
How do I change my major?
If you are a freshman or sophomore (0-55 credits), you need to go to a Undergraduate University Division (UUD) office (https://www.msu.edu/dept/uud/) to change your major. Students are designated to UUD offices based on where they live. If you are a junior or senior (56 credits or more), the major change can be requested with the College of Social Science Student Affairs Office in 201 Berkey Hall or with your advisor.

Should I complete an internship?
Absolutely! Now, not all programs of study require internship experience to graduate, but this can be an invaluable opportunity to network, gain experience, and check out different career paths. Internship credits can also sometimes be used to meet other requirements within your major (like a 300-level PLS course).

How and when do I apply for graduation?
There is an online graduation application on the Registrar's website (www.reg.msu.edu). Fall Semester graduates need to apply to graduate by the end of the first week of Fall Semester, and Spring and Summer graduates need to apply to graduate by the end of the first week of Spring Semester.

Can I take classes at another school to meet my MSU requirements?
Yes. Check out the Transfer Credit Equivalency System (www.transfer.msu.edu) to see how courses from different schools transfer back to Michigan State. Be careful though—once you have earned 56 credits (at MSU or anywhere else) you can no longer transfer credit from community college— it must come from an accredited, 4-year institution.

PLS 422 Seminar in Political Science
Topics include: American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Philosophy. Please check the online Schedule of Courses (www.schedule.msu.edu) to identify the most current topic in your seminar section.

PLS 441 Islam and World Politics. Interdepartmental with James Madison College.
Honors Program

The Department of Political Science offers an enrichment program to members of the Honors College who are majoring in Political Science. Honors College students who wish to graduate with Honors in Political Science must meet the following requirements:

1. Take at least eight Honors courses. These may be in a variety of different departments.

2. Take at least four Honors courses in Political Science. Two of these Honors courses may be PLS 481H and PLS 491H or any two or more graduate courses taken in fulfillment of the capstone project (see item 3 below). Honors courses include Honors sections, Honors options, and graduate seminars. At least one of the courses must be at the 300- or 400-level or above.

   2.1 The Department offers Honors sections of PLS 100, 140, 160, 200, and 201 on a regular basis. Honors sections of 300-level courses are also offered occasionally. The Department also offers Honors-option opportunities in many courses; Honors options must be arranged by agreement with the faculty instructor in the course early in the semester. If a student seeks to complete an Honors option in a course taught by an instructor who is a graduate student, approval of the PLS Honors Adviser is required, by both university and department policy. In order to achieve an Honors option in any Political Science course, a grade of at least 3.0 in the course is required.

   2.2 Graduate courses also count as Honors courses; Honors students are always encouraged to consider graduate-course opportunities. The PLS Honors Advisor can help you select graduate courses. In order to achieve Honors credit in a graduate course, a grade of at least 3.0 in the course is required.

3. Conduct a capstone project that may be satisfied by one of the following tracks:

   A. Honors Thesis: The Honors program in the Department of Political Science provides opportunities for Honors students to engage in original research under the close supervision of a faculty member in the Department. By writing an Honors Thesis, students have the chance to put their accumulated study of political science to use in a major, year-long project of independent research and scholarship. See “The Honors Thesis” below for additional information. Students who choose to write an Honors Thesis must enroll in the following two courses and earn a minimum of 3.0 in each to satisfy the capstone requirement:

      a. PLS 481H “Honors Seminar in Research Design.” The Department strongly encourages students to take PLS 481H in their junior year.

      b. PLS 491H “Honors Thesis.” To be taken in the semester after completion of PLS 481H.
B. Two graduate-level PLS courses: Students may enroll in two PLS graduate courses (at the 800 or 900 level) to satisfy the capstone requirement. Students must earn a minimum grade of 3.0 in each of these courses.

C. Research project: Students may engage in a research project through a faculty member in the Department, and may earn credit through PLS 490H, “Honors Internship.”

D. Linked BA-MPP program (see http://pls.msu.edu/index.php/mpp-program/linked-ba-mpp-program): Students enrolled in this program are automatically taking multiple graduate courses in the MPP program. These courses are counted as fulfilling the capstone requirement.

Students should consult with the PLS Honors Advisor early in their careers to decide which capstone track they will pursue.

Note: Honors College students will be permitted to waive any of the above requirements and replace them with substitutes if the substitutions contribute to an enhancement of the student’s undergraduate Honors program. Approval of the PLS Honors Advisor is required for any such substitutions. The student will normally be required to prepare a well-developed, written proposal for each such substitution and submit it to the PLS Honors Advisor for decision. Before developing any such proposal the student should consult with the PLS Honors Advisor about the rationale and content of the substitution.

The Honors Thesis

The Honors Thesis is a substantial work of independent research or scholarship, to be supervised by a faculty member in the Department and evaluated by an Honors Thesis Committee. The Honors Thesis Committee will normally consist of the faculty supervisor plus at least one additional faculty reader; the Chair of the Honors Thesis Committee will be the faculty supervisor of the Honors Thesis. Typically, the Honors Thesis will be 40-75 pages.

As noted above, the Honors student intending to write an Honors Thesis will normally take the following two courses:

a. PLS 481H, “Honors Seminar in Research Design.” This course is intended to assist students in the preparation of a research design for the Honors Thesis and to assist in the selection of a supervisor for the Honors Thesis.

b. PLS 491H, “Honors Thesis.” This is the course in which students enroll when writing the Honors Thesis. Students may enroll for 3-6 credits of PLS 491H, “Senior Honors Thesis.”

The Chair of the Honors Thesis Committee will normally be a faculty member in the Department; any deviation from this norm must be approved by the PLS Honors Advisor. If a faculty member from outside the Department is selected as supervisor, a faculty supervisor from the Department will be designated as faculty of record for PLS 491H. Graduate students in the Department of Political Science may serve on an Honors Thesis Committee with the approval of the PLS Honors Advisor. Faculty and academic staff at MSU from outside the Department may serve on an Honors Thesis Committee as a third member with the approval of the PLS Honors Advisor.

After completion of the Honors Thesis, the student is required to arrange, in consultation with the Chair of the Honors Thesis Committee, an oral presentation and defense of the Thesis. The defense will be open to Department faculty and students. The Honors Thesis Committee will confer Honors as follows:

HONORS: Completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would earn at least a 3.0 on a final paper in one of the Department’s Tier II Writing courses.

HIGH HONORS: Completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would earn a 4.0 on a final paper in one of the Department’s Tier II Writing courses.

HIGHEST HONORS: Completion of a substantial work of independent research or scholarship that would, with modest revisions, be of a quality sufficient for presentation at a professional conference, or that would meet a comparable standard appropriate to the project.

The Honors Thesis satisfies the Tier II Writing requirement, with the approval of the Undergraduate Advisor.

Honors students are encouraged to present their Honors Thesis work at the University Undergraduate Research and Arts Forum (usually in April).
Teaching Minor

Students who are majoring in Education may earn a teaching minor in Political Science. Students should complete the following requirements to achieve the teaching minor and prepare for the state’s competency exam:

Three of the following: PLS 100, 140, 160, 170

Three of the following:
- PLS 201, 301, 302, 304, 310, 313, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 331, 333, 334 (American Politics)
- PLS 342, 344, 351, 352, 354, 356, 357, 358, 362, (Comparative Politics)
- 363, 364 (International Relations)
- PLS 371, 372, 377 (Political Theory)
Degree Enhancements

MSU offers a number of degree enhancements that may be used to complement or extend academic interest. Students should contact the department or office that sponsors the degree enhancement to inquire about specific requirements or formally add it to their primary degree.

Second Degree
Second degrees require ~150 total credits. With this option, students earn a second diploma.

Primary Major
The PLS primary majors require 37-48 degree-specific courses. Student must graduate with ~120 total credits.

Additional Major
Generally, additional majors require 30-45 additional credits. Students must complete a minimum of ~120 total credits. This major is transcriptable and does not result in a second diploma.

Minor
Minors were first introduced to MSU in the late summer months of 2006. Slowly, departments have begun to offer minor programs. Currently, the only minor the PLS Department offers is the Teaching Minor. Most minors require at least 20 credits.
Awards and Scholarships

The Department of Political Science receives information each semester about awards and scholarships that are available either to College of Social Science students exclusively or to all Michigan State students. As this information becomes available, the advisors will circulate the information to all political science majors. Many of these awards have specific criteria that students must meet in order to be eligible and materials must be submitted by the designated deadline. For additional information, students should contact the respective department or college that coordinates the scholarship.

Two scholarships that are coordinated by the Department of Political Science include:

Burton L. and Rosalie P. Gerber Scholarship

Study Abroad/Study Away

Michigan State University encourages students to take advantage of the opportunities available for overseas study. As technology and politics contribute to a global society, international experience facilitates an understanding of other peoples and societies and the ability to function as an informed citizen in the 21st century. Many of the programs offered by MSU fulfill graduation requirements. The Department of Political Science promotes three programs of study in particular: Washington, D.C., United Kingdom, and Australia. Courses are taught by political science faculty from MSU and by guest lecturers. Ask an advisor to help you determine how overseas study will work in your degree program.

Washington, D.C.
Program offered Fall and Spring terms. Apply in early spring. This program provides an exceptional opportunity for qualified students to live and work in our nation’s capital while maintaining a full program of academic study. The twelve-week program offers a full range of courses, including a work assignment in one of Washington’s wide range of government agencies, not-for-profit organizations, or corporations. Student participants have the opportunity to interact with Washington professionals and to enjoy the city’s vast cultural and educational resources while earning 12 academic credits. http://msustudyprograms.wordpress.com/

United Kingdom
Program offered Summer term only. Apply in early. Earn a minimum of 7 credits to a maximum of 12 credits. During this five-week program, earn Social Science (ISS) and/or Political Science credit while studying British politics, society, and culture in two of the great cities of the United Kingdom. London is one of the world’s great political centers, the birthplace of representative democracy and the busy heart of a major European parliamentary system. It is also a lively center of Western culture and entertainment. Students will have access to some of the world’s greatest museums and historic sites, as well as to the theatre and rock concerts and much more. Edinburgh is the historic capital of Scotland. It is a beautiful city (sometimes called the “Athens of the North”), located in a splendid natural setting, and it is the political and cultural heart of Scotland. http://studyabroad.msu.edu/programs/ukpolisci.html

Australia
Program offered Spring term only. Apply early. This six-week interdisciplinary program is open to all majors and offers a unique opportunity to study firsthand the people, government, justice system and public policies of Australia. You'll have ample time to travel independently after the program in Australia, New Zealand, the Pacific Islands or Asia. As a means of broadly exploring specific points of contrast, this study abroad program gives an overview of the contemporary government, political, and justice systems of Australia. It also examines traditional and emerging public policy in several areas of importance to contemporary Australia (i.e. the environment, immigration, aboriginal affairs, equal opportunity, multiculturalism, social welfare, health, and international relations). Where appropriate, comparisons are drawn to the United States. https://osa.isp.msu.edu/cache/profiles/100136.pdf

If you are interested in another area of the world or topics of particular interest, please explore the large variety of programs available @ http://studyabroad.msu.edu.
Internship Program

Public Service Internship Program
While field experience is required only for Public Policy majors; Prelaw, General Political Science, and World Politics majors are encouraged to gain practical experience during their undergraduate studies by participating in an internship. Students can learn valuable job search and career exploration techniques, develop job-related skills, and frequently make contacts that will be useful in their careers after graduation. Internships can often lead directly to employment opportunities.

If you would like to earn academic credit for your field experience, the Political Science Department offers a course (PLS 494) for which you can apply. The application and program requirements are available online at http://polisci.msu.edu/index.php/undergraduate-program/internship-program/public-service-internship-program. Students should make plans and prepare their applications prior to the semester in which they would like to participate, and have it preapproved by the PLS Internship Coordinator. PLS 494 may be used as one substitution for one 300-level PLS course.

Students are responsible for securing their placement. The internship coordinator is available to assist students in finding an appropriate internship. Generally, this placement can be in a variety of areas within the following guidelines:

- Internships must be related to government, politics, or public service.
- Students may not serve as an intern in an office where they have previously worked.
- Full or part time jobs will not be eligible for internship credit.
- Students must submit the application form, resume, and cover letter to the internship coordinator for approval.

Michigan Government Semester Program
The Michigan Government Semester Program is offered every Spring Semester. The Program focuses on the study of Michigan government and politics and development of professional experience and skills for students interested in a career in or related to public service. The skills, experience, and contacts made in this Program will greatly enhance career development. The Program consists of 14 credit hours. Students are enrolled in the following courses:

- PLS 422: “Michigan Government and Politics” (4 credits)
- PLS 422: “Professional Development Skills” (4 credits)
- PLS 494: “Field Experience, Internship” (6 credits)

Classes are held twice per week in downtown Lansing in the Capitol Building or nearby office building. The program features prominent guest speakers from Michigan government and politics. For more information as well as the requirements and application process see http://polisci.msu.edu/index.php/undergraduate-program/internship-program/michigan-government-semester-program. Students interested in the Program should make plans and prepare their applications prior to the semester in which they would like to participate, as space is limited. The internship coordinator must preapprove all applications.

*For questions about either of these programs, please contact Professor Charles Matzke, matzkec@msu.edu, the Department of Political Science Internship Coordinator
Legal Internship Program
The Legal Internship Program is offered during the Summer semester with PLS 392 in the Spring semester prior. This program focuses on providing students thinking about a career in law with an opportunity to work in the legal environment, under the supervision of licensed lawyers, on actual cases before applying for law school.

Program Prerequisites
Students must submit an application for PLS 494. In order to be considered for the program, two academic criteria must be met:

- Must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.0 at the time of the application
- Must be enrolled in, or have taken, PLS 392 (Preparation for Legal Field Placement, taught by Professor O'Shea.) Students may apply for PLS 494 while enrolled in PLS 392, but must complete PLS 392 with at least a 3.0 to continue into PLS 494

Application Process

- Download and complete the Legal Internship Program Application form from the Department of Political Science Internship page
- Submit application along with current resume and one (1) page statement of interest
- Once the application is accepted by Professor O'Shea, meet to discuss possible internship placements
- Interview with placement sites as needed. Once an offer is received, the student will be enrolled in PLS 494 (Please note that a placement is not guaranteed for any student. Students will have to interview with potential placement sites and receive an offer before enrollment in PLS 494 is permitted).

Email Professor Melissa O'Shea, osheam@msu.edu, with further questions regarding the Legal Internship Program
InnovateGov Program (Detroit)

Many cities in Michigan are challenged by insufficient resources and increasingly high expectations from their residents for quality services and greater responsiveness to pressing problems. City leaders and community advocates may attempt to meet those demands through innovative government programs.

The Civic Innovation Immersion Program (InnovateGov) aims to deliver some of this critical capacity to Michigan’s beleaguered cities while providing our students with the opportunity to learn about public sector innovation by doing real work on real public problems.

Program Components
InnovateGov is offered during the Summer Semester, and consists of both In the Field experience and In the Classroom time.

Program Prerequisites
The InnovateGov program seeks a diverse group of motivated, hard-working students who are passionate about improving the way government works. There are no GPA requirements or prerequisites. Students are encouraged to take PLS 302 “Urban Politics” and/or PLS 422 “Policy Innovation in American Cities” as precursors.

Application Process
- Download and complete the InnovateGov Program Application Form from the Department of Political Science Internship page
- Submit application, current resume, and brief (1-2 page) statement of interest
- Schedule an interview with Professors Sapotichne and Scorsone once application is processed

Independent Study

The purpose of an independent study is to pursue a subject that is not covered in a scheduled class. This may be further research on a topic raised in class or something that is not available in the University catalog. A student must have a topic of interest or a research plan and then approach a faculty member in the appropriate field. In general, faculty members will not agree to supervise independent study unless the student has done course work with them previously and has sufficient background to undertake the project. Remember, students who enroll in PLS independent studies receive a numerical grade, not a pass/no pass grade.

Once a project has been approved, the student must file an independent study application with the department.

NOTE: Only 3 credits of PLS 494 (internship) or 495 (independent study) may count toward the Political Science requirement. There is an overall limit of 20 combined credits allowed in internship/fieldwork and independent study.
How do I know which career is right for me?
The best way to learn about a career is to talk to individuals who have held similar positions. Find professionals in your area who are willing to share their experiences. If you are unsure of where to begin, the Internship Coordinator for your major may be able to give you names and/or contact information of local professionals. You can also visit the College of Social Science Career Services website (http://socialscience.msu.edu/career_services/) to identify career options, design personal career plans, develop job/internship search strategies, plan for graduate school and much more.

Job shadowing is a fantastic way to understand everyday tasks and get a sense of the day-to-day work of different professions. Spend a couple of hours, or even a few days, with a lawyer, a campaign manager, or a government official to better understand what their job really entails.

Another way to gain insight is to conduct an informational interview. Meet with a professional who is currently working in the field that interests you and ask them about their work. Why did they choose their position? What do they like/dislike about their career? Do they have recommendations for a student or new professional who wants to get into the field?

There are also a number of online resources that provide information on various careers. This is an opportunity to put your newly learned research skills to the test. You can start your search by visiting these websites:

www.myspartancareer.com (MSU’s career resource for students)
http://www.educationindex.com/poli_sci/ (Government and Political Science Resources) www.ourpublicservice.org (Government Jobs) www.usajobs.opm.gov (Government Jobs) www.studentjobs.gov (Government Jobs for Students)
www.mnaonline.org (Michigan Nonprofit Association)

Everyone wants me to have experience. How do I get it?
Complete some field experience through an internship class. Not all programs of study require internships to graduate, but this can be an invaluable opportunity to network, gain experience, and explore different career paths. Internship credits can also be used to meet other requirements within your major (i.e. one 300-level PLS requirement will be waived upon completion of a PLS 494 Political Science Internship).

In the past, what careers have political science graduates selected?
Recent MSU Political Science graduates are enrolled in a variety of graduate programs, including law, public administration, political science, business administration, labor and industrial relations, history, and psychology. Others are employed by businesses, industry, and several branches of government.
